

Supplemental Security Income (SSI) in Hawaii

What is SSI?

Supplemental Security Income (SSI), is a federal program that provides monthly payments to people who have limited income and resources. SSI is for people who are 65 or older, as well as people of any age, including children, who are blind or have disabilities.

To be eligible for SSI, you must also have little or no income and few resources. The value of the things you own must be less than $2,000 if you're single or less than $3,000 for married couples living together. We don't count the value of your home if you live in it, and, usually, we don't count the value of your car. We may not count the value of certain other resources, such as a burial plot.

To get SSI, you must apply for any other government benefits for which you may be eligible. You must live in the United States or the Northern Mariana Islands to get SSI. If you're not a U.S. citizen, but you legally live in the U.S., you may still be able to get SSI. For more information, read Supplemental Security Income (SSI) for Noncitizens (Publication No. 05-11051).

The state of Hawaii pays a state supplement, but only to those SSI recipients, including children, who live in foster or domiciliary care. Hawaii determines individual payment amounts for eligible children. Two distinct levels of payment are made based on the type of domiciliary care facility.

The payment you get at the beginning of each month includes both the federal SSI payment and your supplement from Hawaii.

Medical assistance

If you get SSI payments, you can usually get medical assistance (Medicaid). You must apply for Medicaid at your local human services office.

Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP)

If you get SSI, you may be able to get help through SNAP, formerly known as food stamps. SNAP benefits can help you buy more food without spending more money. However, we don't decide if you qualify for SNAP benefits. If everyone in your household is applying for or getting SSI, you can apply for SNAP at a Social Security office. If not, you must apply at your local human services office.

Other social services

People who are eligible for SSI may be eligible for additional resources and services provided by their local human services office, including:

- Services for people who are blind or have visual impairments.
- Additional state financial aid.
- Motor vehicle insurance.
- Information and referrals.

For more information, contact your local human services office.
